

AI Bracket War Room 2026

Google Sheets Tracker Access Guide

Use this guide with your private Google account to run a tournament tracker beside the GoodNotes or printable planner. It is designed for personal fan use, friends-league scorekeeping, match notes, prediction tracking, and watch-party organization.

Fast Setup

|   |                                                                                                  |
|---|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1 | Open Google Drive and choose New > Google Sheets > Blank spreadsheet.                            |
| 2 | Create tabs named Dashboard, Matches, Predictions, Friends League, AI Scout, and Notes.          |
| 3 | Use the column map below to mirror the planner fields, then freeze row 1 on every tab.           |
| 4 | Keep the sheet private or share it only with your friends-league group.                          |
| 5 | Use the planner PDFs for writing, review, and matchday decisions; use Sheets for sorting totals. |

GoodNotes + Printable Workflow

Use the hyperlinked PDF as the command center and the printable backup for paper watch nights. Record raw matchday notes in the planner first, then update Google Sheets after each match so standings and group totals stay easy to sort.

Buyer Notes

This guide does not require paid add-ons. Google Sheets features can change, so menu names may vary slightly by device or browser. Keep any shared sheet private to your group.
